Topic: “The unfolding story of Organ Transplant Surgery”

Speaker - Dr. Ashish Sharma
Professor & Head
Department of Transplant Surgery, PGI, Chandigarh.

End stage organ failure has now become an important illness for physicians. Our understanding of these illnesses has increased leading to patients surviving longer specially with newer organ replacement therapies. The challenges being faced while managing these patients including immunosuppression, infectious diseases, brain death, ischemia reperfusion injury, organ preservation, vascular surgery complications have more similarity than differences amongst individual organs which has given rise to a new speciality of Organ Transplant Surgery with two broad classifications into Abdominal and Thoracic Organs. While these specialties are well established in developed countries, India continues to lag behind.

Department of Transplant Surgery of PGI Chandigarh has taken a pivotal role in initiating deceased organ donation in this region and has laid the foundation of the speciality of transplant surgery. The efforts of the departments had led to many firsts in the country including – the first MCh program in this speciality, the only program in the country currently performing Donation after Cardiac Death and has played a leading role in establishing pancreas transplant in India with highest numbers of simultaneous kidney and pancreas transplants in the country.

The efforts of department has led to PGI Chandigarh receiving the National best hospital award multiple times for the organ donation program and for establishing Donation after cardiac death. These efforts were also recognised at the national level with PGI being made the Regional Organ and Tissue Transplant Organization ( ROTTO ) for entire North India.

All Faculty & Post Graduate Residents are required to attend the online Guest Lecture.
