Clinical Grand Round

Date : 17.12.2022
Day : Saturday

Time : 03:30 PM – 04:30 PM
Venue: Auditorium (above HLTs)

Topic: "PREGNANCY WITH DENGUE FEVER-CONCERNS AND CHALLENGES "

Abstract:

According to the World Health Organization (WHO), approximately 40% of the world's population (over 2.5 billion people) live in areas with high risk of contracting dengue infection. Clinical manifestations of dengue are wide ranging from asymptomatic to needing intensive care in cases of hemorrhagic dengue fever. There is evidence to show an association between maternal dengue and increased maternal deaths. There are conflicting results regards fetal adverse outcomes including preterm birth and low birth weight. The clinical assessment, diagnosis, treatment, and monitoring of dengue fever or dengue hemorrhagic fever during pregnancy can be very difficult due to various physiological changes occurring in pregnancy and other obstetric complications(HELLP syndrome, PIH, thrombocytopenia of pregnancy) mimicking a clinical presentation of dengue infection. So a high index of clinical suspicion , early referral to tertiary center and multidisciplinary team management will prevent maternal –fetal serious adverse outcomes.
