Topic: "Unusual Complication In Girl With Neovagina"

Abstract:

A girl not having menses till the age of 16 years is a matter of great concern for the family. On evaluating these patients, outflow tract obstruction is found to be the culprit in few of them. In these patients of vaginal atresia, surgical neovagina creation is accepted treatment modality which helps in restoring sexual function. In patients with functional uterus, it may also help in restoring menstrual function by creating a passage for menstrual blood. This has huge impact on women's life in terms of sexual activity, marital and social life and her self esteem. Neovagina creation is being increasingly used for gender reassignment surgery as well. In this CGR, we will discuss a rare case of abnormal profuse bleeding from neovagina of a 20 year old girl with absent uterus posing as a diagnostic and management challenge for us.
