Clinical Grand Round

Date : 18.03.2023
Day : Saturday

Time : 03:30 PM – 04:30 PM
Venue: Auditorium (above HLTs)

Topic: "Mediastinal adenopathy through eyes of Endobronchial ultrasound (EBUS) in Tuberculosis endemic region: a case based approach"

Abstract:

A young male who was diagnosed with anterior uveitis also reported to have dry cough for more than 2 months. He was referred to us for evaluation of pulmonary complaints and to rule out diseases involving both ocular and respiratory systems. These disease included tuberculosis and sarcoidosis commonly. Other causes of granulomatous uveitis such as herpes infection, varicella, syphilis, leprosy etc. in our setting are less common. Clinico-radiologically differentiating tuberculosis from sarcoidosis is a challenging task owing to similar presentations. Several ophthalmology guidelines such as International workshop on ocular sarcoidosis also guide for extraocular biopsy for diagnosing sarcoidosis. EBUS is a relatively new modality highly useful for ruling in/out initial stages of sarcoidosis and tuberculosis by approaching mediastinal lymph nodes. In this CGR we are presenting an interesting but common case involving two systems (ocular and pulmonary) with an emphasis on role of EBUS for making diagnosis. In addition we will also present data of work done related to EBUS at HIMS.
