Topic: "Surgery - the main prognostic factor for Gall Bladder Cancer treatment outcome."

Abstract:

Gallbladder cancer (GBC) is uncommon globally, however its common cancer in sub-Himalayan regions of Indian subcontinent, southeast Asia, some parts of China, Argentina and Japan. In general, it's the most common biliary malignancy and has poor prognosis, since it's often detected quite late due to nonspecific symptoms and signs. Early detection is the only way to improve the outcome. Optimal Surgery in the form of Radical Cholecystectomy (Cholecystectomy with liver resection and lymph node dissection) is the mainstay of treatment for early gallbladder cancer, providing long term control. Adjuvant treatment is required in a majority of cases being treated with curative intent. In advanced stage palliative and supportive treatment including biliary drainage procedures are helpful to improve quality of life.

After the CGR, there will be a 10-minute presentation by undergraduate student of Batch 2022. The students of Batch 2022 & 2023 are requested to attend the presentation
