Topic: "Fitting the Pieces Together: A Challenging Case of Seizures with Pseudoseizures."

Abstract:

Abnormal body movements are one of the most common presentations in the emergency department and routine OPD of our hospital. These patients upon detailed assessment are frequently diagnosed with seizure disorder or Psychogenic non epileptic seizures (PNES). But sometimes a mis-diagnosis may occur and patient diagnosed initially as seizure may be later diagnosed as PNES or vice-a-versa. Sometimes these two conditions might even be comorbid. The correct diagnosis is important as treatment widely differs for these two disorders.

Here, we present a case of young married female who presented to the emergency department with multiple abnormal body movements. She was admitted to the Psychiatry department and was later diagnosed as Seizure disorder with PNES. We also liaised with the Neuro-medicine department for confirmation of seizure disorder and its management. This patient was successfully managed and is now better and following up in our outpatient department.

This case implies the importance of basic knowledge about seizure and PNES and how to differentiate these two similar appearing conditions.
