Abstract:

Herpes simplex virus (HSV) encephalitis is a leading cause of viral encephalitis in India. It accounts for 10-20% cases of viral encephalitis in tertiary care center. Prognosis of these cases depends upon early diagnosis and treatment. Without timely antiviral treatment, the mortality rate for untreated HSV encephalitis can be as high as 70%. In this mortality meet we will be discussing the case of 27 years old female who presented in a unconscious state to our hospital. This case emphasizes the need for heightened clinical suspicion, early diagnosis (MRI & / CSF), and timely antiviral therapy and management of other systemic conditions to improve survival and neurological outcomes.
