Himalayan College of Nursing organized an alumni talk by Mr. Abhishek Singh, who is currently working in the Keats Ward (Stroke, Dementia, and Geriatric Care) at Kingston Hospital, London. He shared an inspiring account of his professional journey, detailing how his academic foundation at SRHU supported his transition into an international healthcare setting and eventually helped him qualify as a registered nurse in the UK.

In his talk, he explained the essential requirements for pursuing overseas nursing opportunities. He emphasized the importance of strong clinical skills, effective communication, continuous professional development, and understanding licensing procedures such as CBT, OSCE, and language proficiency tests. He also discussed the need to adapt to multicultural healthcare environments and maintain high standards of patient care.

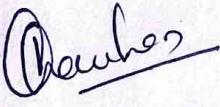

His real-life experiences, practical suggestions, and honest reflections provided students with a clearer perspective on the challenges, expectations, and wide range of opportunities available in global nursing careers. The session concluded with an interactive Q&A, where students actively engaged with him to clarify their doubts regarding various pathways, documentation processes, and preparation strategies for working abroad.
