ANTIBIOTIC AWARENESS WEEK

Guest Lecture & PG Quiz

Date: 24/11/2025

Name of Event-Guest Lecture with PG Quiz (Antibiotic awareness week)

Date-21st November 2025

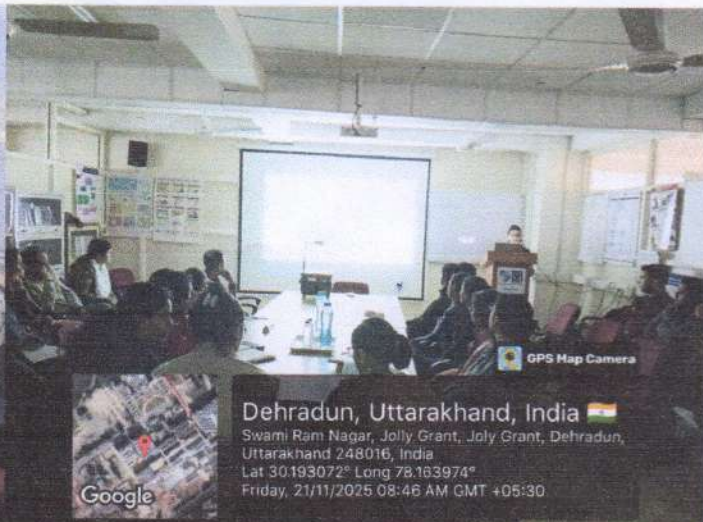

Venue- Department of Pediatrics

Antimicrobial Awareness Week was observed At Department of Pediatrics, Himalayan Institute of Medical Sciences from 18 Nov to 24 Nov 2025 to highlight our role in protecting child health. Antimicrobial resistance is a growing threat, especially for our vulnerable pediatric population. Celebrating this week reinforces our commitment to rational, evidence-based antimicrobial use in wards, PICU, and outpatient care and serves as a reminder for clinicians, nurses, and trainees to strengthen stewardship practices in every prescription we write. This way we join a global movement to preserve the power of antimicrobials for the children of today and tomorrow.

As part of this activity a guest lecture was organised and Dr Nupur, Assistant Professor Department of microbiology delivered an enlightening talk highlighting antibiotic resistance pattern of our PICU and she also gave practical tips to interpret the microbiology report and emphasised the teaching that always treat the patient and not the report.

This was followed by an intra departmental quiz for post graduate residents where Dr Ashish Simalti played the role of quizmaster and asked questions related to antibiotics, microorganism and their clinical applications. More than 50 attendees get benefited by this programme.

This event was conducted at seminar hall of department during morning academic times as part of regular celebrations of various health awareness programmes launched by WHO like patient safety day, breast feeding awareness week and world prematurity day etc.
