REPORT

Organized by	: Clinical Case Club, Swami Rama Himalayan University
Duration	: 11 th November 2023
Venue	: Adi Kailash Auditorium
Time	: 3:30 PM – 4:30 PM

The Clinical Case Club, of Swami Rama Himalayan University, organized a Clinical Grand Round (CGR) on 11th November 2023 at the Adi Kailash Auditorium. The topic for the session was “Management of Urolithiasis – From Knife to Needle to Nothing”. The event was part of the institute’s ongoing effort to promote clinical excellence, encourage interdisciplinary learning, and strengthen evidence-based medical education.

S. No	Date	Title / Topic	Resource Person	Department	Participants
1.	11.11.2023	Management of Urolithiasis – From Knife to Needle to Nothing	Dr. Rajeev Sarpal,	Urology
			Dr. Aastha Raina	General Surgery
			Dr. Gaargi Tyagi	General Surgery
			Dr. Jyoti Chauhan	Uro-Radiology
			Dr. Kim J. Mammen	Urology

The key objectives of the Clinical Grand Round series were to:

- Foster a structured platform for clinical questioning and analysis.
- Encourage interdisciplinary collaboration and case-based discussions.
- Mentor postgraduate students through real-world clinical problem-solving.
- Focus on contemporary trends and advancements in patient care and management.

The session focused on Urolithiasis, one of the most prevalent diseases in urology, known for its significant morbidity and substantial impact on healthcare expenditure. If not timely managed, urolithiasis can lead to serious complications, including renal failure. The presentation highlighted the remarkable evolution of treatment modalities for urolithiasis—from traditional open surgeries characterized by high morbidity and visible scars, to the advent of minimally invasive endourological techniques, and now, to modern scarless procedures made possible through advancements in optics, lasers, and miniaturized instruments.

As part of the CGR, two interesting clinical cases of urolithiasis were presented to illustrate diagnostic challenges and management strategies. The program began with an introduction by Dr. Rajeev Sarpal, Department of Urology, who set the stage for the discussion. This was followed by two detailed case presentations from the Department of General Surgery, delivered by Dr. Aastha Raina and Dr. Gaargi Tyagi, Junior Residents, highlighting the clinical course, investigations, and management outcomes. Dr. Jyoti Chauhan, Junior Resident, presented the Uro-Radiology perspective, offering radiological insights into diagnostic approaches and procedural planning. The session concluded with a summarization of the topic by Dr. Kim J. Mammen, Department of Urology, who emphasized the progressive shift from invasive surgical methods to modern, minimally invasive and non-invasive approaches in managing urolithiasis.

A dedicated discussion and Q&A session followed, lasting approximately 15 minutes, which facilitated interactive learning and knowledge exchange among faculty and postgraduate residents. The session provided a valuable platform for sharing advancements in urological management and highlighted the importance of technological innovation and multidisciplinary collaboration in improving patient outcomes.

The Clinical Grand Round witnessed active participation from faculty members and postgraduate residents across various departments. The event successfully fulfilled its objective of promoting clinical reasoning, collaborative learning, and evidence-based practice. The Clinical Case Club extend their appreciation to all speakers and participants for their enthusiastic involvement and contribution to the success of this academic event.

REPORT

Organized by	: Clinical Case Club, Swami Rama Himalayan University
Duration	: 01 st July 2024 – 31 st August 2024
Venue	: Adi Kailash Auditorium / HLT-2 Charak Lecture Hall
Time	: 3:30 PM – 4:30 PM

The Clinical Case Club of Swami Rama Himalayan University, successfully organized a series of six Clinical Grand Round (CGR) sessions from 01st July 2024 to 31st August 2024. These sessions were a part of the institute's Continuing Medical Education (CME) initiatives aimed at advancing clinical acumen, strengthening interdisciplinary learning, and fostering evidence-based medical practices among healthcare professionals.

The CGR series exemplified SRHU's commitment to lifelong learning, faculty development, and clinical excellence.

S. No	Date	Title / Topic	Resource Person	Department	Participants
I.	13.07.2024	Clinical Grand Rounds: Pathological Neonatal Jaundice	Dr. Shoham Majumder	Neonatology	176
II.	03.08.2024	Current Trends in Diagnostic Approach of Idiopathic Inflammatory Myopathy	Dr. Deepak Goel	Neurology	93
III.	24.08.2024	Phakomatoses: Wyburn-Mason Syndrome	Dr. Renu Dhasmana	Ophthalmology	76

The key objectives of the Clinical Grand Round series were to:

- Foster a structured platform for clinical questioning and analysis.
- Encourage interdisciplinary collaboration and case-based discussions.
- Mentor postgraduate students through real-world clinical problem-solving.
- Focus on contemporary trends and advancements in patient care and management.

The CGR series brought together faculty members, postgraduate students, and clinicians from various specialties to discuss and analyze complex and educational clinical cases. Each session was designed with specific objectives aligned to the overall goals of fostering critical thinking, encouraging interdisciplinary collaboration, and enhancing patient-centered approaches in medical education. The programs emphasized structured discussions, case-based learning, and mentoring of postgraduate trainees through real-life case presentations and expert-led analyses.

The first Clinical Grand Round, held on 13th July 2024, focused on Pathological Neonatal Jaundice, led by Dr. Shoham Majumder, Assistant Professor, Department of Neonatology. The session addressed the diagnostic and therapeutic challenges associated with neonatal jaundice and witnessed active participation from 176 attendees.

The second CGR, organized on 03rd August 2024, was on the topic Current Trends in Diagnostic Approach of Idiopathic Inflammatory Myopathy, conducted by Dr. Deepak Goel, Professor and Head of the Department of Neurology. This session discussed the evolving diagnostic strategies and clinical complexities of inflammatory myopathies, with participation from 93 faculty members and students. The third CGR, held on 24th August 2024, explored Phakomatoses: Wyburn-Mason Syndrome by Dr. Renu Dhasmana, Professor, Department of Ophthalmology. The discussion centred on the multisystem involvement and rare presentations of Wyburn-Mason Syndrome, drawing participation from 76 members of the academic and clinical community.

Each Clinical Grand Round session was well-structured and contributed significantly to the continuous professional development of healthcare providers. The discussions not only deepened participants' understanding of diverse clinical conditions but also encouraged interdisciplinary dialogue, integrating perspectives from neonatology, neurology, ophthalmology, and other related fields. The sessions emphasized analytical reasoning, clinical decision-making, and the application of current evidence-based practices in patient management.

Throughout the series, the Clinical Case Club played an instrumental role in coordinating and executing the events efficiently. The initiative served as a valuable platform for medical educators, residents, and students to engage in academic discussions that enhance the culture of clinical excellence within the institution. By focusing on diverse and challenging case scenarios such as refractory rhythm disorders, leprosy as a diagnostic mimic, complex cardiovascular interventions, and rare neurological conditions, the program successfully promoted collaborative learning and critical evaluation of real-world medical cases. The series concluded with an acknowledgement by the Clinical Case Club expressing its sincere gratitude to all speakers, participants, and the supporting staff for making the Clinical Grand Rounds a resounding success. These programs stand as a testament to SRHU's vision of nurturing academic growth, fostering a spirit of inquiry, and promoting excellence in healthcare delivery through continuous education and knowledge sharing.
