Overview of the Activity

The Department of Ophthalmology, Himalayan Institute of Medical Sciences, SRHU, conducted a Vision Screening Camp at Akbarabad, Bijnor on 29 January 2025. The outreach activity was aimed at assessing visual health among the local community and spreading awareness about common eye-related issues.

Purpose of the Outreach Program

- To provide basic vision screening services to the community.
- To detect potential visual impairments and refer individuals for further evaluation.
- To promote awareness on eye care, hygiene, and preventive ophthalmology.
- To provide practical exposure and community-based learning for students.

Activities Conducted

- Screening of visual acuity using standard ophthalmic charts.
- Preliminary examination for refractive errors and common eye disorders.
- Counseling beneficiaries on eye health, preventive measures, and follow-up care.
- Referral advice for individuals requiring detailed ophthalmic assessment at HIMS.

Student Participation

Two students actively contributed to the functioning of the camp, assisting in vision screening, documenting findings, and engaging with the community to ensure smooth flow of services. Their involvement enhanced their understanding of public health ophthalmology and community engagement.

Outcome of the Activity

- Vision screening conducted for community members with positive participation.
- Identification of individuals with refractive issues and other eye complaints.
- Increased awareness among residents regarding the importance of regular eye check-ups.
- Practical skill-building and experiential learning for participating students.

Conclusion

The Vision Screening Camp conducted by the Department of Ophthalmology, HIMS, SRHU, was successful in extending essential eye-care services to the community of Akbarabad, Bijnor. The camp not only benefitted the local population but also strengthened the community outreach initiatives of the university. Continued periodic eye-screening programs are recommended for sustained community benefit.
